St. Francis College Gets Crucifix From Donovan

St. Francis College in Brooklyn announced Monday that it had been given an 18th-century crucifix by James B. Donovan, president of the Board of Education.

The Very Rev. Brother Urban Gonnound, president, said the 15-inch-high sandalwood cross had been given to Mr. Donovan by the mother of a man captured in the Bay of Pigs invasion of Cuba. Mr. Donovan negotiated the release of some of the captives.

The crucifix, which was carved in Spain, will be exhibited annually in the college library during Christmas and Holy Week. The body of Jesus, which stands six and a half inches high, has been restored by artists. The cross is enclosed in glass on a background of black velvet.
